

Wing and Courier.

SOUTELLE & BURR, PROPRIETORS.
C. A. SOUTELLE, Editor.

All business letters should be addressed to Soutelle & Burr, and communications intended for publication should be addressed to "Editor of Wing and Courier."

MONDAY, AUGUST 29, 1887.

Mugwump don't seem to recognize the fact that it is laid out on a cooling board in the rear part of the President's wood shed.

The efforts of the Mugwump papers to induce the independence of the Maryland Democrats who have been driven to the support of the Republican ticket by the corruption in their own party, and at the same time avoid all reference to the real cause for the condition of affairs that has produced this bolt, are truly amusing. Grover Cleveland, that "staunch reformer," is the one and only man responsible for the independent movement. It is the height of absurdity to denounce Senator Gorman. He would be absolutely powerless without the cordial support given him by the President. The blacker the Mugwumps paint Gorman the worse they make it for Mr. Cleveland, who, despite all protests, continues to extend the influence of his great office to the Maryland Senator in order that he may keep the machine well lubricated for every emergency.

We suppose the disgusting talk that has been heard concerning the President and his substitute during the war will be brought to an end, now that the latter is dead. Its introduction into politics is unpleasant. Indignation, however, the political tone of the period is. Its appearance in journalism is a disgrace to that profession.

This is pretty cool for a paper that fairly reeked with the most malicious talk about the Republican candidate in 1884. There was nothing too mean or too dishonest for it to parade in its columns. It made no pretense of discussing national questions, but devoted itself to personalities as false as they were disgusting. The Herald thinks it perfectly legitimate to abuse the Republican candidate, but any criticism of the President at once excites its deep indignation. The Mugwump sheets like the Chicago News, which pays a man to libel Mr. H. by cable, should call off their dogs before they assume the right to criticize other papers.

We have received a copy of Colman's World, published in St. Louis, containing an article on tariff on salt by Prof. T. D. Curtis, in which that writer calls for the removal of said duty on the plea of cheaper salt for the farmers. This sort of talk is the merest delusion and has long since failed to enlist the support of the farmers to the free trade theory. A removal of the tariff on salt does not mean a lower price for the farmers on that commodity. That experiment was given a fair trial and proved a most complete failure. The only effect of the removal of the duty would be to turn our market over to the foreign importers, who, as soon as they secured control, would fix prices to suit themselves and our farmers are too intelligent to imagine for a moment that they would receive consideration from such a source. Furthermore the price of salt has steadily decreased since that industry has developed under the fostering care of protection. Our free trade friends will have to find some ground of complaint if they desire to reach the farmers.

The choice by the managers of the United Labor party in New York of a machine Republican to act for them in naming the election inspectors is a move which, if carried out, dissipates the last doubt as to the alliance of Mr. Henry George and the Republicans in this canvass.

As the Wing has repeatedly stated all that is necessary for the laboring men to do in order to attain the real attitude of the Democrats toward them is to refuse to be led about by the nose by the Democratic bosses. As long as they are willing subjects, doing as they are told and asking nothing in return, they are held in profound admiration, but the moment they attempt to assert their independence then they are called down the wrath of the party organs upon their heads. In the case referred to by the Post the labor leaders simply refused to choose a Democratic Commissioner to designate their election inspectors. Had they done so they would doubtless have been cheated out of their inspectors. As it is the Commissioner will choose the requisite number of inspectors from the names submitted to him by the leaders of the labor party. Nothing would have been said of course about a "deal" had the Democrats been given an opportunity to get in their work. The laboring men will soon learn to know if the Democratic party claims to hold a mortgage on their votes and if so how they obtained it.

No voter will feel next year that in supporting either party nomination he is voting for or against free trade, for instance, or against a careful regard for vested interests of every kind. There are two very important and significant facts. We may add to them that in a simple contest between the two parties administrative reform will not be made a decisive issue, because neither party stands distinctly for such reform.

No it seems that Mr. Curtis has gone over bag and baggage to the Democratic party which he so eloquently portrayed as "a conspiracy for the spoils." Of course it is administrative reform is not to be an issue in the next campaign there is no ground for Mr. Curtis to support President Cleveland other than that he is a Democrat, and therefore confess himself in sympathy with the spoilsman. Mr. Curtis' treatment of the tariff question is as dishonest as his previous advocacy of Grover Cleveland as a reformer. Mr. Cleveland is nothing if not a free trader. He is in hearty accord with the Carlisle-Morrison-Hurd tariff for revenue only policy and Mr. Hurd himself squarely asserts that that is practical free trade. Had Mr. Cleveland possessed sufficient influence with the Democratic Congress he would have rushed the Morrison bill through the House and then nothing but a Republican Senate would have saved the country from the distressing effects of that measure. The man who votes for Grover Cleveland next year casts his vote for free trade, just as the man who votes for the Republican candidate knows that his vote is recorded in favor of protection to American industry. Mr. Curtis has come to grief in trying to delude the people on the reform issue, and the same fate awaits him if he persists in the attempt to beg the tariff issue.

MUNKY'S "CHRIST BEFORE PLATE." We have just received from T. B. Plateau & Bros., Philadelphia, a fine steel plate engraving issued by them representing in line and stipple an admirable copy from Munk's famous painting "Christ Before Pilate," which has just been sold for over One Hundred Thousand Dollars. The engraving is 22x28 inches, very fine.

ly executed and would ordinarily be a determined effort to make a large popular sale of it by putting the price at one dollar, sent postpaid to any address. The original by the great Hungarian artist has been the theme of edifying comment on both sides of the Atlantic since it was finished five years ago as the supreme work of the great painter. The scene is the "Judgment Hall" with Pilate on the judgment seat and the High Priest Caiaphas in the act of accusing Christ who stands with heavenly resignation upon his countenance, while the Roman soldiers hold back the mob who are shouting "Crucify him." The work is stately, realistic and wonderfully impressive. Copies sent on receipt of one dollar.

The Two Democratic Presidents.
Now that President Cleveland has accepted an invitation to attend the Piedmont Fair at Atlanta, Georgia, there is a loud demand by the followers of the Lost Cause that "President Davis" shall also be present and share in the popular ovations. The Atlanta Capital insists that "the grand old warrior" shall be present "on the same day that Mr. Cleveland is to be here." It fervidly says:
"The people from the North, the South, the East and the West would come to witness this one act alone. Let Henry W. Grady be the man to introduce Cleveland and let Davis be the man to introduce Cleveland. Let alone will provide the North that when their Southern cousins extend a welcome from the heart it is shown by their actions as well as by words."
It would be an impressive spectacle to see the Solid South's Democratic President of 1861-5 clasp hands with the Solid South's Democratic President of to-day.

Cleveland and Hill.
(New York Tribune.)
Within a few days the assertion has been several times observed that Mr. Cleveland's nomination for President and Mr. Hill's for Governor, the Democrats would be certain to carry New York. This assertion often repeated, as it is by concert, calls for attention. Has it any basis in the thinking of the people to be accepted as true? Mr. Cleveland was not a strong candidate in New York as General Hancock, for though assisted by all the votes Mugwump treachery could influence, he did not gain over Hancock's vote the natural increase of his party in four years. This State has grown in population and votes as rapidly since 1880 as it grew from 1870 to 1880, when the rate was 16 per cent. in ten years, or 6.4 per cent. for four years. At that rate the 114,511 votes for Hancock in 1880 should have increased 34,170 by 1884, but Cleveland only gained, with all his outside aid, 38,387 votes over Hancock. Cleveland's vote and the labor vote together did not increase as much by 2,000 as the natural increase in proportion to population.

Mr. Hill polled, one year later, about 62,000 less than Cleveland, though he gained most of the Groverback vote, which was reduced from 17,000 to 2,000. By the demagogism which secured him that vote he was elected, and not otherwise, against a Republican candidate who polled 71,070 votes less than were cast for Mr. Blaine a year before. But the disgust of labor voters, when they found out what a shallow trickster Hill was, gave a strong impulse to the George uprising which followed, and which took 50,000 votes or more out of the Democratic party.

Mr. Hill is weaker now than he was in 1880, because his incoherent treachery and unscrupulous partisanship have been more plainly disclosed. He would be cut out of the polls by thousands who would vote for Cleveland and yet, on the other hand, he would be zealous supported by an army of party workers who would delight in bringing their fall vote to get off by killing Mr. Cleveland at the polls. As for Mr. Cleveland himself, he is weaker than he was in 1884 for sundry obvious reasons:

1. Mr. Cleveland is weaker, first, because he has failed to keep his pledges to citizens who wanted a non-partisan civil service. This failure is laboriously excused by the professional reformers, but even by them is not fairly admitted.
2. He is weaker because he has declared hostility to the cause of protection, to which he was induced to pretend adherence in a speech just before the election of 1884. He was told that he must make such a speech or be defeated; his course as President has warranted manufacturers and workers alike in their protection of home industry cannot be expected to continue if he can gain re-election with a Congress to support him.
3. He is weaker because he has kindled the intense hostility to him and his Administration of those who resent British influence in American government. The course of the Secretary of State and of Minister Phelps, the treatment of the fishery question and of the extradition question, have vastly increased the number of those who will vote next time to secure an American Administration for the country.

4. He is weaker because his appointments have often been made of the active workers of his party. This is inevitable, in any case, since he could not appoint more than a small fraction of those who wanted office. But he has contrived to make Mr. Manning and other friends of his party flagrant nepotism and personalism in many appointments, and at the same time to anger it by pretences of virtuous devotion to reform, when urged to appoint any party worker not personally devoted to him.

5. He is weaker because he has insulted Union men, and especially the veterans of the loyal service, by his pension votes, his order to surrender rebellious, and his selection of the most conspicuous traitors for high honor and trust.
6. He is weaker because he has disappointed the hopes of honest Democrats for a genuine improvement of the public service. Garland and Lamar's aid in his Cabinet. Sparks and Black and a host of unworthy men hold high places. The public service is not better, but far more corrupt and faulty than it was before pretence of reform according to Cleveland began.

SOONER OR LATER.
To every man who has a family the question of the best means of securing a comfortable and pleasant life is a matter of great importance.
It should be considered calmly and dispassionately.
It should be decided upon by a man who is willing to be contented upon any other basis than the one which is offered by the world.
The world is a place of many temptations.
It is a place where a man may be led astray
by the allurements of the flesh, the world, and the devil. It is a place where a man may be led to the ruin of his family and his soul.
It is a place where a man may be led to the loss of his property and his life. It is a place where a man may be led to the loss of his honor and his respect. It is a place where a man may be led to the loss of his family and his soul. It is a place where a man may be led to the ruin of his family and his soul.
It is a place where a man may be led to the loss of his property and his life. It is a place where a man may be led to the loss of his honor and his respect. It is a place where a man may be led to the loss of his family and his soul. It is a place where a man may be
